ITNJ CHIEF JUSTICE INVITED BY AUSTRALIAN PREMIER TO NATIONAL APOLOGY DAY ADDRESS ACKNOWLEDGING CHILD 'RITUAL' ABUSE

On Monday October 22nd the ITNJ's Chief Justice Sir John Walsh of Brannagh, at the invitation of the Office of the Prime Minister of Australia, attended the National Apology Day address in Canberra.

Prime Minister Scott Morrison issued the national apology at parliament, in front of hundreds of victims and advocates of this horrific generational complex. The apology earmarks a sea-change in the willingness of the establishment to acknowledge such crimes, not least because in Australia some of the highest ranking people in government institutions themselves have been named as alleged perpetrators of historic child sex abuse.

The fact that the Prime Minister included in his address the term 'ritual abuse' was another victory for campaigners and advocates of truth and disclosure in this arena. Ritual abuse indicates the more nefarious aspect of child sex abuse, as it encompasses and acknowledges the occultic Satanic element, which is vital in understanding the true pathology of historical child sex abuse.

The ITNJ, its justices, commissioners, and trustees thoroughly applaud the Australian government for taking this historic stance and have extended to Prime Minister Morrison an offer to cooperate and assist with any ongoing inquiries or investigations.
